

HOME SWEET! HOME

("Before" and "After" edition)

RJ Construction took special pride in making an old home look (better than) new again

Robert Jordan, owner of RJ Construction, recently oversaw a home renovation in an area near and dear to his heart. Here he shares why the job meant so much to him, as well as some of the "whats" and "hows" involved in the project. Just so you know, the photos above represent "before," while the remaining pictures show just how great "after" can look ...

Growing up in Woodland West, the neighborhood is near and dear to my heart. So anytime we get to tackle one of those time-honored treasures, it's always a treat. This house was no different. Longtime Arlington resident Colleen Cooper took the plunge to revitalize this old home.

Colleen was able to secure this house from an original homeowners estate. She was overcome with significant foundation problems and long-term neglect to the home.

Instantly, Colleen and I had a great connection, and I was able to channel a vision that she could grasp. Through some tough negotiations we were able to walk through the changes and upgrades. We found a solution to magnify this home's potential.

*The before and after shots are just breath taking. #teamRJ really out did themselves on this one – all while battling the challenges of COVID and industries shutting down. So excited the day we turned this 013 masterpiece over to Colleen and her family. For more: rj-construction.com. A

As a former resident of the Woodland West neighborhood in which this home is located, RJ Construction owner Robert Jordan was especially eager to take on the "before and after" project pictured on these two pages. Sharing a vision for the finished product with homeowner Colleen Cooper – and implementing it impeccably – Jordan and Team RJ created a real estate masterpiece.
