The original idea to celebrate our 100th anniversary of featuring amazing cars on these pages was to choose that one special vehicle from previous issues that stood out among all the rest. It turned out that there was just no way to elevate any one of them to a position of “best ever” or some other form of exalted standing among all the rest.

Obviously, every one of them deserved to be chosen, otherwise they would not have appeared on these pages to tell their stories because all of them had their own reasons to believe they were set aside for recognition.

Instead, we’ve chosen the ones you see this month as representative of all the rest. Still, any selection of some among them all is a daunting assignment. Any of the previous featured vehicles could just as well have been picked, so we did this sort of randomly with the goal of achieving a cross section of models, ranging from the earliest to the latest spanning the first seven decades of the past century.

Since we’ve written complete stories and included photos of every car from all angles inside and out, we used just the feature photo of each here as a reminder of how extraordinary the world of collecting classic cars has become.

I hope you will enjoy the look back as much as we at Arlington Today have done in putting this together for our anniversary issue. A

HOME SWEET! HOME

Celebrating some great looks in some great houses featured over the past 100 issues

Over the past 100 issues, we've been privileged to visit magnificent homes located throughout the Arlington/Mansfield/Grand Prairie region.

Some were huge, others not so much, but the common thread that has run through the Home SWEET!

Home series is the inspiration that drove the builders and dwellers to craft abodes of distinction.

From the view from above to every nook and cranny within, these houses possess unique combinations of comfort and style, and it was always our hope that our readers not only might appreciate what they're seeing but might also be able to adapt in their own dwellings some of the design ideas and ideals depicted.

This month, we look back at more than a dozen of just such concepts, which have been featured regularly since we began publishing the magazine in 2013. These are, indeed, some "sweet!" homes. A

And, now, a word from our sponsors

Some of our loyal readers and advertisers help us celebrate this milestone issue

"ARLINGTON TODAY is a beacon of information for our city and the surrounding areas. The Sanford House and Women's Health Services have been proud supporters of this publication almost from its inception. The results we have seen in our overall increase in profile and name recognition have increased exponentially since we started advertising here. The magazine not only provides unique and thoughtful advertising opportunities, it also has an abundance of current information about our community.

Every month they spotlight current events, new venues and upcoming happenings that are significant in Arlington. The AT staff is clearly supportive of businesses with their diligence to know the people behind the businesses and brands. They offer regular articles within the framework of the magazine which enhance the expenses that companies pay for advertising costs.

Yale Youngblood, Editor Extraordinaire, writes regular articles that are pertinent to the monthly theme and adds special interest from his unique perspective. I would give a shout out to Debbie Roach, the Sales Manager (and lucky us, our representative), who is always on top of upcoming issues and always offers options to enhance our businesses.

The magazine has regular, interesting contributions from our former Mayor, Richard Greene. Executive Publisher and former City Council representative, Judy Rupay, makes a special effort to not only visit our establishment, but regularly bring new guests and visitors. Judy has devoted her boundless energy to building and supporting Arlington throughout her time in our city and continues to do so with AT. I would say that the team that produces and delivers Arlington Today reflects the passion that they have, not only for our city, but for all the people who make up the businesses that are part of our community.

These personal "touches" are only a few of the extras that make Arlington Today one of the best promoters of our wonderful city. Here's to reaching a milestone of publishing their 100th issue of Arlington Today! I'm looking forward to being part of the next 100 as well!"

Joan Bergstrom, MD
Owner of The Sanford House Inn and Spa
Founder of Women's Health Services

"SINCE WE received the first copy of Arlington Today we have been so pleased with each issue! If we call for coverage, we get it. Arlington Today has been there for any and all our publicity needs."

So proud of our hometown magazine, Arlington Today!!!"

Geraldine Mills, Director, Arlington Historical Society

"CONGRATULATIONS, Arlington Today, on the 100th edition!

This sentiment comes with great appreciation for this positive, professional publication which consistently features local faces, local businesses and local places. What a gift the magazine is to its readers and to the local charities it sponsors. Thank you for sharing upcoming events and ways readers can support worthy causes.

Congratulations and many thanks to Judy Rupay, Richard Greene, Yale Youngblood and the entire Arlington Today team! Your commitment to Arlington resonates through the pages of the magazine.

If you love Arlington, you can't help but love Arlington Today magazine!"

Brandee Kelley, Owner, Brandee Kelley Group

"AS A PAST ARLINGTON RESIDENT and now working in Arlington at Arlington Charities, the foodbank for those in desperate need of food, I am happy to see that there is a publication that tells the Arlington story again. It has been many years that Arlington has had its own publication. 100 editions! Time goes by so fast, especially writing about a city that has grown nationally so fast.

I love reading about the different areas, some new and the old ones that have grown and have remained the same as when I lived here. The stories about the individuals I have known and all the new blood that are making this city great are wonderful. The publisher Judy Rupay and her staff have done a wonderful job including every aspect of the city. A pleasure to read.

As someone who works with a nonprofit, I must say that Arlington Today Magazine has been and is a huge supporter of our cause. They have been very generous in writing about what we do, supporting our events and giving me insight into what we need to do to get our information out to the public. They are not just a "magazine", they are supporters. I thank them for that. Congratulations on "100" and to many more to come.

Penny Rowell
Development Director, Arlington Charities

"I RELY ON ARLINGTON TODAY to deliver results for my clients. I place ads in this publication because I'm confident that it targets our community effectively and efficiently."

Reba Blevens, Owner, Media Matrix

"ARLINGTON TODAY has been the heartbeat of the Arlington and Mansfield community since its inception 100 issues ago. Judy Rupay and her dedicated team are fully invested in the success of Arlington, and Arlington Today has been her way to give back to the community and help it grow at the same time. I love how she gets to know her advertisers and works hand-in-hand with Ad Agencies like mine. I'm always happy to recommend Arlington Today to my clients because they'll always get more than just an ad, they'll get someone who considers them a partner both in their success and the success of Arlington."

Alice Cantu, Owner, BlueRock Marketing

"CONGRATULATIONS on the 100th issue! We always look forward to reading the magazine every month! The staff has been extremely friendly and helpful and always getting our ads pulled together quickly."

Teresa Burda, Owner, Gracie Lane

"THE ARLINGTON TODAY MAGAZINE has been a staple of our community for many years, and I am proud to have been a supporter throughout my career. Personally, and professionally, I have developed a strong relationship with the folks at the magazine. I admire their continued commitment toward fostering a community of dedicated, charitable, and hardworking individuals and I applaud the magazine for supporting and highlighting local businesses in the Arlington/Mansfield area.

I take solace in knowing that when I partner with Arlington Today, I am partnering with like-minded individuals who take as much pride in our community as I do. I look forward to continuing my partnership with Arlington Today Magazine. Thank you for all you have done for Arlington/Mansfield and cheers to your continued success!

State Rep. David L. Cook

"IT'S HARD TO BELIEVE that Arlington Today isn't 15 or 20 years old, as it seems like such a main stay for our community for the last 8 and a half years. What I like about the magazine is that it is very comprehensive in delivering interesting stories about the business community and our social community, covering them equally. A very balanced update monthly about the Greater Arlington area, including Mansfield, Kennedale, DWG, and Pantego happenings. I really enjoy the stories about the businesses, the people, and the events that are happening, or are about to happen. The seasoned staff of writers and Editors and history you have at the helm of the publication, starting with Judy Rupay, Richard Greene, and Yale Youngblood bring so much great history to the coverage that I look forward to reading the magazine every month.

"As an occasional advertiser I see the benefits of placing stories and advertisements in the publication to let the community know that I am proud to be a citizen and a businessman in our great city of Arlington. In that vein, I have been lucky enough to have been appointed by my friends and fellow Chamber members to be the 2022 Chairman of the Greater Arlington Chamber of Commerce. With that responsibility, I'm getting out to every meeting and event that promotes our Businesses and our Community, as a whole, to be a great place to live, work and play.

With a great publication our community gets to read about all the good things in life we are blessed with around Arlington Today!" (Yes, that's a play on words.)

Jim Maibach, Owner, Peyco Southwest Real Estate

"ARLINGTON TODAY has shared so many of the great neighborhood, civic and business stories and the events that are happening in our community. I am appreciative of the magazine's time and attention over the years to help spread the word and keep residents informed about what's happening in our city.

Having a magazine that carries the city's name in the masthead is also very meaningful. To me, it shows that Arlington is growing up. It's no longer a smaller, growing city – but it's a mature city with publications that are dedicated to covering what is going on in our city.

I've lived in Arlington since 1985 and I'm keenly interested in Arlington-specific stories about the people, places, and businesses and things you can find here. It's great to be able to read about our small businesses and about our citizens' American dream stories. These are stories that need to be told. Arlington Today fills that void and really helps people identify with their city and build pride in what is going on here."

Trey Yelverton, Arlington City Manager

"MY ARLINGTON TODAY ... In this modern world I am thankful for Arlington Today creating a magazine I can hold in my hands and learn about my community. Confession, I always turn to the Scene section first to see if I know anyone in the photos! Community means so much more than where you live. To me community is people with which you have something in common. In this day and time when so many point out our differences, I believe this publication is helping us see our community and what we have in common, in all the best ways possible.

Serving on the Mansfield City Council gives me a front row seat to what is going on in and around our area. I am so proud of so many things that are happening in our area to promote our citizens and working together. Our neighboring communities inspire us and challenge us to do better and achieve more. That is what good friends do, help you rise up to the next level.

I am also so excited to see the growth in our North Texas region. As a Realtor, I have had the opportunity to help so many families that are coming to our Metroplex for a better life and more opportunities. As we continue to grow and welcome our new friends with open arms, I look forward to learning and exploring better ways to serve my clients. I love this area and I know that comes across effortlessly as I live, work and play in this community."
