

The home of Clay and Brandee Kelley

The home of Madeline Ayoub

The home of Stephen Zimmer

The home of Clay and Brandee Kelley

The home of Howard and Judy Zuckerbrow

The home of Stephen Zimmer

The home of Paul and Kerri Stiefel

The home of Jay Warren

Home SWEET! Home

Looking back at some of the holiday-riffic homes we have featured over the years

Make no mistake about it: There are few experiences as warm or inviting as getting to pay a visit to a dwelling that is spruced up for the holidays (no Christmas tree pun intended).

Whether it's the overall theme inside and outside a particular house or the individual pieces that bring the Christmas puzzle to life, a home that is adorned is a home that is adored.

Fortunately, over the past eight years we have been allowed to share an array of abodes of this ilk with our readers.

This Christmas tradition started about a year after we did, and the holiday Home SWEET! Home features consistently became remembered as some of the favorite articles we've published.

This month, the staff at Arlington

Today decided it was time to look back at some of the local holiday shrines that double as conventional dwellings during months not starting with the letter "D."

As you can see, the homes featured were already stellar in their own right. But when the holiday decor was added, they became places of wonder and awe.

Merry Christmas, everyone! A

The home of Stephen Zimmer

The home of Howard and Judy Zuckerbrow